

OLLI at UNC Asheville (formerly the NC Center for Creative Retirement) is working to make our members more aware of the rich history and active present of Asheville. In an effort to achieve this, our College for Seniors recently had a very well-received 8-week course called “Asheville in Black and White: a history of race relations in Asheville.” The course provided an eye-opening background for many of our members new to this area and were previously unaware of Asheville’s challenging past.

Many have asked for more information about current programs and opportunities that could further our understanding. As a part of that effort, we would like to let our members know more about the good work your organization does by posting calendar listings including some of your activities year-round. We would appreciate it if you would let us know the best way we can keep informed about activities or initiatives your organization sponsors that are open to the public. Do we have the best contact name(s)? If not, would you suggest the best person(s) for us to contact? If you post a calendar on your web site, what is the easiest way to link to your site?

Thanks for all you and your organization do to further community inclusiveness. I look forward to hearing from you concerning your activity calendar.
